

Field Mycology

Vol. 23(3) August 2022

CONTENTS

Editorial	74
Fungal Portrait No. 91: Three bleeding Mycena species – Geoffrey Kibby	75
Hydnum reginae newly described from Britain – Geoffrey Kibby & Kare Liimatainen	77
Didymium vernum , a second Butterbur inhabiting myxomycete in the UK – Jurgen Nieuwkoop	81
Puccinia cyani and Peronospora agrostemmatidis , parasites of hosts sown in wild-flower mixes – Chris D. Preston	84
Forty years of Amanita inopinata – Alick Henrici	91
Readers' Finds	94
Caloboletus kluzakii newly recorded from Britain (or will the real C. radicans please step forward) – Geoffrey Kibby & A. Martyn Ainsworth	95
Lepiota coloratipes – an agaric new to Britain – Richard Fortey	99
How bioluminescent fungi helped restore my mental health - James Scurry	101
Notes and Records - Alick Henrici	105
Book Reviews
The Fungi of North East Wales – Bruce Ing	108
A Guide to Waxcaps in West Wales – David Harries	inside back cover

Front cover: Calonarius (= Cortinarius p.p.) sodagnitus, showing the bright red reaction on the cap to 10% KOH solution. Under Fagus on calcareous soil, North Downs Way, Surrey, October 2021. Photograph © Geoffrey Kibby.
Back cover: Hydnum reginae, newly described from Surrey, England. See the article on p. 77. Photograph © Geoffrey Kibby.